

Halloween incident

Youth in court
after thefts

A 14-year-old Drayton Valley youth will appear in young offenders court as a result of an incident Halloween night.

According to RCMP Cpl. Chris Lee three youths, two 13-year-olds and the 14-year-old were picked up in the area of 53rd Street following complaints that three young males were harassing kids and taking their Halloween candy.

The two 13-year-olds were released with a warning to their parents while the 14-year-old faces a charge of theft under $50 and will appear in young offenders court.

"We view this as extremely serious. Kids shouldn't be subject to this," Lee stated.

It was the only incident the Drayton Valley RCMP handled Halloween night. "It was an extremely quiet night with very little activity in the rural area," Lee added.

Only 184 youngsters attended the Kinmenowners sponsored Halloween Hoopla at the Rec Plex. The good weather was a key factor. A year ago it was a cool 24 and snow, more than 300 attended the community-sponsored affair. Different areas of the town reported anywhere from 15 to 60 kids knocking at their door for treats.

Parish to build a $800,000 church

By Frank Ryan

St. Anthony's Parish has announced plans for a new $800,000 church in Drayton Valley.

Ernie Hansen, chairman of St. Anthony's building committee, appeared before town council last week with a model of the new church. Some rezoning will be involved in the construction of the 350-seat church on the parking lot east of the existing site on 25th Avenue between 47th and 48th Streets. The 7,000-square-foot church will include a full basement.

While council accepted the proposal in principle, the plan still has to have the blessing of St. Anthony's congregation. Once that has been received, an application will be made to the Arch Diocese in Edmonton. The congregation is expected to make their decision in the next two weeks. Once that hurdle has been marked, the application to the Arch Diocese is expected to be made by mid-December.

The building committee is looking at a spring start with construction to be completed before the end of '86.

The existing church will remain until the new facility is ready, and then it will be cleared away to make room for parking.

The re-zoning the town will be looking at in studies closing off part of the alley behind the existing church.

Consortium

Upgrading course offered in town

An adult academic upgrading course is being offered at the Pembina Educational Consortium in Drayton Valley.

The six-month course starts December 2. Classes will be held Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

"We're trying to generate enough interest for two classes," says consortium executive director Joe MacLellan.

Placement testing will be done on November 14, 10 a.m. at the consortium. "So far we have tested 14 people with another six on a waiting list," MacLellan confirms.

"So many people don't have their complete education. This is the foundation. It's the key to opening the door for more educational opportunities," MacLellan says.

"It's a heck of an opportunity," he added. Financial assistance can be arranged if anyone is interested. The program, being made available through the Alberta Vocational Centre, is part of a program plan MacLellan submitted to Alberta Advanced Education last year.

"We've offered this on a part time basis in the past and found that very receptive," MacLellan stated.

Anyone who is interested should call the consortium.

Hard to get money

No great real estate rush on yet

By Frank Ryan

There's been no great rush for lots following the recent $55 million mill announcement by Sturdi Wood.

Chad Nichols of NBS Realty says there was a strong market in Drayton Valley before the Sturdi Wood announcement was made. "The town's busy and apartments are full, but there's no big demand for lots," the past president of the Chamber of Commerce stated.

Nichols says one of the biggest problems facing potential contractors is the availability of money. "Someone might want to build, but it's hard to get money," Nichols added.

The longtime Drayton Valley businessman says most of the rumors about development is just talk. "Someone might build a strip mall, but it has to be someone with money," Nichols commented.

If a contractor is interested in building in Drayton Valley, there's lots of land.

Mayor Bob Mayhew says the town has about 80 lots and he suspects there are upwards of 200 lots around.

The mayor doesn't expect a business boom. But, he would welcome a healthy boom.

Nichols expects the first influx of new people into the area to stay at local hotels and use up apartment space, as they check out what's happening.

As far as the real estate market, Nichols says it's been good for the past year.

Pat on the back

Oil industry is applauded for contributions to town

Often we take things for granted.

In Drayton Valley the oil industry fits into that category.

The impact the oilpatch has had on Drayton Valley is hard to measure. But a quick glance at the telephone directory shows more than 150 businesses are directly related to the industry.

More than 65 per cent of the labor force in Drayton Valley works in oil-related businesses according to figures from a 1981 Statistics Canada report.

Mayor Bob Mayhew summed it well by saying "if it wasn't for the oil, 90 per cent of us wouldn't be here."

Every business in town relies on the industry. If the oilpatch booms so does the town.

The oil industry deserves credit for what they've done. Besides their work in the oilpatch, countless dollars have been provided for community projects such as the Park Valley swimming pool.

The most important day in Drayton Valley's history came in 1953 — when oil was discovered here. It's been 32 years since that day in June, 32 years for a town that probably wouldn't exist without the oil industry.

The industry deserves to be saluted for the many contributions it has made to Drayton Valley and the surrounding area.

The bumpstecker "Have you hugged your kid today?" can apply to the oil industry in Drayton Valley.

Only it should read "Have you hugged an oil worker today?"

Think about it, maybe you should!

Did you read this? Now I know why all the sheiks want to move to Drayton Valley!

New correspondent

Hunter gets bouquet for local article

I'm looking forward to my year as a director on the Drayton Valley Chamber of Commerce.

This is my first stint as a director, but I've been connected with the chamber in the past.

In the early 70s I left the journalism/broadcasting field to assume the role as secretary-manager of the Dawson Creek Chamber of Commerce. My biggest job was operating their tourist booth which handled 380,000 visitors during the summer months. Another project was organizing a chamber convention.

The chamber is a vital part of every community. Besides representing business, they act as another public relations source for the town.

Newly-elected president Marty Prentice has indicated the chamber will be active in the months ahead.

A bouquet to Rocky Rapids area resident Bonnie Hunter.

Besides being The Western Review's new correspondent in that area, she contributed an excellent article in last week's paper on Joseph Miller. We appreciate her interest and look forward to more of her work in the paper.

Reporter/photographer Lorne Christensen has been busy this past month putting together articles and pictures for this week's salute to the oil industry.

We'd like to salute him for his work in the oilpatch, and thank the industry for all their cooperation in putting this section together.

We're sorry to see Ron Szila leaving his position with the Bashive Workshop. He's been a 'super' individual to work with. All the best Ron, wherever your career takes you.

War

Vets remembered

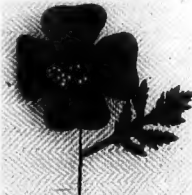

Dear Friends,

On Nov. 11, we will pause to remember the fallen and all those who served our country in time of war.

Though the years pass, the bugle's sad lament heard on Remembrance Day will remind young Canadians - our sons and daughters and their sons and daughters - of the sacrifices of wars they have never known.

The deeds of those who served have not been forgotten. A new generation is indeed taking up the torch. A nation's pride and respect will hold it ever aloft. Please join with me in remembering the sacrifices of those who served and in thanking them for the peace we enjoy today.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF OUR MEMORIES

By Angella Wagner, 13

R.W. Pickup Junior High

The significance of war memorials should be found in the hearts of every man, woman and child.

It is a time for thinking about the men and women who give their time and services and especially, their lives to serve their country and to make their homeland free to do as they please.

It is a time for thanking them for what they gave to our country and many others. It is a time for remembering what a war can and will do to the human race. It is a time for giving flowers and a salute to the lost ones. And especially, for all people, every color and every country, to come together and keep alive their dream of peace and happiness throughout the world.

REMEMBRANCE DAY

By Jeanne Mudie, 9E

R.W. Pickup Junior High

They died for us.

On this day, the last man fell.

The guns were silent.

The soldiers stopped fighting
And raised the white flag of courage.

Peace for the men who survived.

Their death looms on.

Spare a tear, they died for youth.

They died for freedom.

So much of their blood was spilled.

Graves marked only with a white cross.
Red poppies substitute names.

Stand proud this Remembrance Day.

Wear a red poppy for the dead.

Grant them one day.

They gave us their lives.

A tray of poppies.

Alberta

Government hopes to close slopes to vehicles

Dear Editor,

The Alberta government, with the support of the Alberta Wilderness Association, is implementing legislation to close the Eastern Slopes to all motorized vehicles.

They are accomplishing this by slowly closing boundary land to motorized vehicles. The Bill is based on a poll taken in 1973 before the influx of motorhomes or all-terrain vehicles. Needless to say opinions, like technology, have changed in the last 12 years.

Both parties claim that the Eastern Slopes are being destroyed by too much ATV traffic. We are also concerned about this but we don't think that the total ban on motorized vehicles only, is fair or practical.

For the first couple of years it will hurt tourist industries. Eventually, people who want to enjoy the Eastern Slopes will borrow or rent horses, hence the traffic will continue. The grassland will become depleted, the land eroded. As a result, more land will be closed to both horses and motorized vehicles. Eventually the land will be closed to all.

What we want to do is get an agreement between the government, the AWA, and the people of Alberta to solve the problem. One which enables all Albertans to enjoy the west country, with elbow room, while preserving it. At the present time the government is ignoring all opposition to their Bill.

We welcome questions and support from individuals, clubs, groups, and corporations in helping fight for free access in the Eastern Slopes.

Yours truly,
Bill Tomlinson, treasurer,
Rocky All Terrain Cycle Club

Central Alberta Junior 'B' Hockey League

Blades play double-header against Hinton

By Frank Ryan

The Drayton Valley Blades earned three out of a possible four points during a weekend double-header against the Hinton Cardinals.

Roman Kelly's troops ran their early season Central Alberta Junior 'B' Hockey League record to 2-2-1 with a 10-10 overtime tie Saturday after recording a 4-3 decision last Friday night.

Penalties played a key role in the 20-goal shootout at the Centennial Civic Arena Saturday as the Cardinals scored seven power play goals. The Blades replied with three power play goals and three more while playing short handed. Referee Dale Schenk called 20 penalties against the Blades, including six for unsportsmanlike conduct while Hinton took 16 penalties.

The visiting Cardinals, with just 12 players held period leads of 5-4 and 7-6 in the shootout. The lead changed hands several times throughout the contest as Hinton took a 2-0 lead in the first before the Blades stormed back with four unanswered goals. But before the period ended, Hinton ended three straight tallies. Early in the third the Blades led 5-7 but the Cardinals scored three for a 10-8 lead before the locals got two to send the game into overtime.

Rob Kynock led the Cardinals' attack with a five-goal effort. Doug Baron, Grant McKinn and Chad Allen had two-goal efforts for the Blades while Kevin Hutchinson, Sheldon Danham, Don Nicks and Blair Shimshashi adding singles. It was Shimshashi's second goal of the season at 16:19 of the third frame that sent the game into overtime. Blades' reminder Kelly Schneider, who replaced starter D'Arcy Carefoot after the opening period, made three big glove saves in the 10 minute sudden-death overtime period.

Carefoot drew the praise of coach Kelly for his effort in the Blades' 4-3 win Friday night. "He played excellent," Kelly stated.

The Blades opened quick on home ice against the Cardinals with three first period goals off the sticks of Baron, Hutchinson and Richard Benoit. Hinton owned the middle frame as Bill McCormick scored twice. Kynock tied the game at the six-minute mark of the third, setting the stage for Baron's game-winning shot from Shimshashi and McKinn at 11:07.

The Blades took 27 of 43 penalties called in the game with their first two goals of the game both coming while they were two men short.

Shimshashi, a recent addition from the midnets, also drew the coaches' praise for his effort in the opening game of the weekend series. "He's playing great," Kelly commented.

The Blades host Rimney in an 8:15 p.m. game Friday and then travel to Rocky Mt. Hines Saturday. They were scheduled to play Barrhead last night but for the second time this season, the Elks called the contest off.

Derrick Boxing Club

Locals win gold

Four members of the Derrick Boxing Club came home from Elk Point with three golds and a silver in Alberta Bronze Glove action.

Derek Nelson scored two first round knockouts to win the gold in his 135 pound junior F class. Nelson knocked out Vince Kalpa and Don Bloor to win the medal.

In the 80 pound junior A class Carl Schmidt won the gold on a unanimous decision over Ricky Twain of Slave Lake. In the 85 pound junior B class Ken Olsen was uncontested but fought an exhibition match against Ron Ward of Slave Lake, from the 80 pound class. Olsen lost the match on a close decision.

The club's silver was claimed by Mike Baker who took the medal in the 75 pound junior A class. Baker won a split decision over Billy Gray of Elk Point to advance to the final bout before losing a split decision to Cyrus Metcalfe of Ft. McMuray.

Some of the club members will travel to Edmonton next weekend for a fight card.

Strikes and Spares

Jenny Greshuk had the ladies' high single for the week with a 291. Laura Barker had the ladies' high triple with a 696. Tuesday Madness had the team high single and team high triple with scores of 1086 and 3056.

In the mixed league the ladies' high single went to Loretta Thorsen with a 294. She also won the ladies' high triple with a 703. The men's high single went to Dwayne Wenas with a 247. He also tied for the men's high triple with Rog Metzger with a 752.

The team high single went to Nuts N Bouts with a 1212. They also took the team high triple with a 3276.

In the golden age league the Wednesday league winners were Betty Fenneman and Mary Johnson, both with plus 159 and the double champions for the men were Robert Elliott and Henry Nicholson with a 49. The bowlers of the week for the Saturday league were Florence Romans with a plus 48 and Chester Vig with a plus 39.

Atoms and Pee Wees

Eight atom teams and eight pee wee teams will hit the ice on the weekend in a Drayton Valley hockey tournament.

The tournament starts Saturday at 7:30 a.m. with Thursday playing Mohawk in the atoms' side with the first pee wees seeing action at 9 a.m. when Wide West plays Mayerthorpe.

Action continues Sunday from 10 a.m. and on Monday at 8 a.m.

Forty-eight games' star awards will be given out during the two-day affair and Puck's has donated the 36 winners' trophies.

County refuses funds

The County of Parkland Parks and Recreation Department has turned down a request for funds by the Drayton Valley Golf Club.

Recreation director Barb Smith confirms that the board turned down a request for $122,000. The money was in help with the club's planned nine-hole expansion.

While the vote was close, Smith says one reason behind the decision included a feeling that the members should make the golf club self-supporting.

Build between the schools

Funds committee formed for Breton pool

A public meeting was held Oct. 21 regarding the possible construction of a swimming pool at the Breton High School.

A fund raising committee was formed with Judy Meade as chairman and Kathy Neufeld as secretary. Other members include Jim Maxson, Ray Stevenson, Judy Pleschling, Carolyn Strand, Ray Young, Peter Vanderhook, Dan Bolechuk, Louise Meinenberger and Pat Stott.

A feasibility package has been obtained from the regional council on consultants, Ron Brown. Because the pool will be situated between the two wings of the school and use common facilities, $200,000 will be saved. Common facilities include locker rooms and furniture rooms. A summer's and rural concept is the philosophy adhered to. The school's recreation complex will be available to the public.

Funds will be raised through donations and grants. Some will come from tax dollars. The building of the pool will be planned in conjunction with the future renovations of the high school.

Some plans for fund raising include sport on sales, letterbox donations, walk-a-thons. While this is an ambitious project, the committee believes it can be done and is the process for the committee on a single goal for which we can all work.

A society will be formed with the specific purpose of working toward the completion and the operation of the pool. Neighbouring schools and communities will benefit with swimming programs being arranged for them and many families will save considerable money on bus to swim. The pool construction will be a west end project.

The pool will be used during and after school hours and will provide local employment, especially for our young people. The pool will also be made available to senior citizens groups.

5 BIG HOURS

It has been almost a full year since the late Mrs. Miss Redden Canada, 1985, was crowned at the 1984 Canadian Finals Rodeo.

Abley's interest in the exciting world of rodeo was sparked at the age of 12 when she rode her first horse. She gained more experience through lessons and clinics, she was offered her first post on a night herd. Now as a full-fledged horse trainer and rodeo instructor, Abley spends most of her time working on horses owned by other people.

The 21-year-old Calgary native was first crowned Miss Rodeo Strathmore in 1984 and then entered the competition for Miss Rodeo Canada, defeating 10 other contestants to take the title.

Through 1987, Abley has made an impressive record to win several titles, rodeo and various promotional appearances. Her busy schedule also included working three days a week at the Canadian Professional Rodeo Association (CPRA) office in Calgary.

The 1986 Miss Rodeo Canada will be crowned

During the Friday Nov. 15 performance at the annual Jimmie Hudson at Northlands Coliseum Nov. 15-17.

The 12th annual Canadian Finals Rodeo will provide more than $100,000 in prize money to Canada's top cowboys.

Each of the five major events will be running for $12,600 each plus $500 a day to the winner of each event for a total of $17,600. Ladies barrel racing and cattle cutting contestants will compete for $4,740 each with the winner of $200 a day for the winner of each event which amounts to a total of $7,740. And a new barrel and cowboy steer riders will each be sharing for a total of $4,160.

But that's not all. Ron's supplies a large fan into the hands of the champions. Cowgirls will get $1,000 to each of the five major events, the same as will as to the 1231 champions in all five major events and cattle cutting. Miss Rodeo will also be contributing $200 to these same winners. Other business money will come from Brandy and Openhouse. Brandy will give $400 to each of the five major events and Openhouse will give $400 to each of the five major events. The winner of the all-around competition, Openhouse will also bring in $1,000 cash and gold and silver belt buckle worth $1,500 to the all-around winner.

Should there be an arena required, this year's C.F.R. there will be an added benefit. The contestant who establish and holds an arena record in any of the five major events at the C.F.R. will receive a $500 bonus from Midway Hardware.

As always, there will be lots of money and excitement to be had at the Canadian Finals Rodeo, Northlands Coliseum Nov. 15-17, 1986.

Harke's horse after award

Whiskey Gold, a four-year-old barrel stealer owned by Jackie and Harold Harke of Drayton Valley is a contender for the Copenhaegen Skool Superhorse Award.

The competition will take place during the 1985 World Championship Quarter Horse Show in Oklahoma City Nov. 16-23.

Sponsored by the U.S. Tobacco Company, the Copenhaegen Skool Superhorse race is equivalent to being named the most valuable player in the Super Bowl or World Series. Any horse qualifying and competing in three or more open world show classes becomes an eligible Superhorse contender.

Whiskey Gold is the third Canadian horse to have ever qualified for the event. He was ridden by Kathy Harke Harke and Whiskey Gold just completed at the Canadian National Show where they tied for the Superhorse title, tying with another horse for the honours.

They are also a heretofore high point performer team in the Quarter Horse Association.

Whiskey Gold meets the three class minimum and will compete in four major events: western riding, trail, hunter under saddle and hunter hack. To determine the winner, points are awarded to horses placing in the top 10 in each class. Those horses will receive one point for each horse placing below them plus one point not increased 10 points for first place. The horse earning the greatest number of points will reign as the best all-around Quarter Horse at the show and will receive from the U.S. Tobacco Co. a handsome trophy and $10,000 in cash.

Horses must earn a pre-determined number of points at approved Quarter Horse shows in order to receive an invitation to this premier event.

Last year's winner of the Copenhaegen Skool Superhorse honor was Regatta (owned by Carol Rose of Gainesville, Texas). The gelding accumulated 37 points in five classes to claim the victory.

Competing for 69 world championship titles and $45,000, will be 2,000 contenders at the 1985 World Championship Quarter Horse Show.

Farmfair

Area residents to compete in horse pull

Three Drayton Valley area residents will compete in the provincial draft horse pulling competition during Farm fair 85.

Lauer and Delbert

Maier will be on Friday's agenda with Mary Lauer scheduled up Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

The Lauers and Maier are members of the Winfield Central Draft Club that will also be sending a team from Hladney, Wetaskiwin and the Winfield area.

The competition takes place in the Northlands AgriCom

Three weight divisions comprise the provincial draft horse pulling competition: light, medium and heavy. Lightweight competitors line up at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 8. On Saturday, Nov. 9 the middleweight teams meet at 7:30 p.m. The heavyweight division will wrap up the competition at 5:30 p.m. Nov. 10.

New to Northlands Farmfair and to Northlands draft horse pulling competition is the "powder puff competition," Saturday, Nov. 9 at 12:30 p.m. During this event teams will be driven by sleds and the winner will be based on the amount of weight the team pulled in comparison to the weight of the team itself.

The prize money is increasing. The total prize money up for grabs amounts to $4,900 in $1,075 per division. In addition, Edmonton Northlands will be presenting each division winner with a banner and will provide the owner driver with a $200 gift certificate toward a western outfit. The provincial draft horse pulling competition is an exciting part of Farmfair '85 as it is being Nov. 7-10 at Northlands AgriCom. Don't miss it!

Volleyball teams win their divisions

Tournament in Morinville

Both the Warriors and the Amazons won their divisions in weekend volleyball action, but neither could win it all.

The teams were playing in an eight-team tournament in Morinville on the weekend.

The Warriors ended up finishing second after losing 15-8 and 15-6 in the final, against Sherwood Park.

The Amazons on the other hand finished with an identical 0-2 record to win the qualifying side but ended up third overall in the tournament.

The junior teams from

Frank Maddock High School traveled to Sherwood Park where the boys lost out in the series and the girls failed to qualify for the playoffs finishing third. The junior teams will be hosting a 20-team tournament this Saturday at Frank Maddock High School.

Tiggars return

The provincial champion Tiggars are back on the court.

The senior ladies' basketball team from Drayton Valley has started practicing again to defend their provincial C title.

The team is practicing every Monday at 9 p.m. at the high school and new players are always welcome, according to coach Gerald Dusterhoff.

We're hopeful of repeating," Dusterhoff says of the upcoming season.

The team is missing a couple of players from their last year's squad but also have a couple of new players according to Dusterhoff.

The provincials don't come until next spring and Dusterhoff is hoping to use the time to "work on a few things."

Speaker doesn't expect election call from Getty

Ray Speaker

Ray Speaker doesn't expect an election before next spring or the fall of 1986. But that doesn't mean he is just waiting.

Speaker, leader of The Representative Party, was in Drayton Valley last week for an informal meeting with local people.

Although only about 15 people showed up at the meeting, a local constituency for the party was formed by Boyd Currie, being elected interim chairman.

Speaker touched on several topics during the two and a half hour meeting, including the possibility of the Representative Party merging with other opposition parties.

Speaker denied they were even considering a merger because of "conflicts in principles." He said they couldn't merge with the Western Canada Concept party because of the separatist issue. He added there is "nothing to merge with" in the local federal party and the CCR party was also very weak.

A merger would be a complete waste of energy, Speaker added.

After the meeting Speaker told The Western Review their first objective as a party is to win 12 to 20 seats in the Legislature. Speaker added that if the people are disgusted enough with the present government they are prepared to become the government.

Speaker said he didn't expect much change from the Conservatives under the new premier Don Getty.

"I expect more of the same," he added.

Seniors visit Red Barn and Edmonton mall

By Edith Norquist

Very recently an Area 7 playoff was held at Evansburg. Ina Nickelson had high in curl for ladies. Betty McDonald was high in what Alice Grant's team was first in floor curling with Olive Janan's team second.

St. Louis they got stuck in an elevator for an hour. They were 430 feet up.

Don't forget the carpet bowling and darts played at the Drop-In Centre Nov. 8 starting at 10 a.m.

For Seniors

On Oct. 26 Frances Bealadoux went to Edmonton with her son Marshall to help celebrate her husband's 90th birthday. He is in a nursing home there. Other friends also attended. Frances is a patient in the Drayton Valley Health Complex.

Recently, Bill Gensick had a perfect score in crib (720) at the Drop-In Centre.

A group of 35 seniors recently went on a two day trip. They went to the Red Barn where they were entertained by the Emeralds and spent the night in Edmonton. They then toured West Edmonton Mall.

On Oct. 28, 10 tables were in play at the Drop-In Centre. High for the ladies was Ina Nickelson low was Frances Bealadoux, high for the men was Mary Barley (playing as a man) and low was Tim Krager. It was good to have Frances with us.

Fred and Maria Berzowski and Flohman and Marcelle Ureghyhn report having a good time on a tour in Nashville. They arrived in Nashville on Hattie's birthday and took in the Grand Old Opry. They toured Elvis Presley's home, Graceland. In

They'll Do It Everytime

By Lizzy-Ell

Now that winter has almost arrived, the air will instill in us the spirit of preparing for those long cold winter days.

The children are putting away their summer toys with much persuasion.

A few Saturdays ago my husband was getting ready to cut wood for our winter supply and wouldn't you know it, the ax was nowhere to be found. He came in from outside and said to a rather harsh voice, "Has anyone seen my ax?" I'll give the person who finds it a quarter."

There was no response, not a head turned from the boots job.

The following Saturday, my husband had the same urge to cut wood. He took another look around the house and yard. He came inside totally frustrated and said, "I will give the first person a $1 who finds my ax. All heads turned from the Saturday morning cartoons and in unison said, "I don't know where it is, buddy. Another Saturday with no cut wood.

The next week my husband made one more attempt at locating his ax. He doesn't give up easily.
This time he went into the family room and an answered that he would give $5 to the finder. Still no response, but I noticed that our 10 year old had gone outside.

Thirty seconds later in she walked with Dad's ax and asked, "Where's the $5?" Father reluctant to reveal into his pocket and pulled out a $5 bill.
That I don't even turn.

Some streets left unpaved for now

Council heard an up date on the paving last week.

Councillor Howard
Olson outlined the areas that will be left until next spring and gave reasons why the alley
behind the Hudson Bay was paved.

Due to some movement expected in the ditch down the middle of the road, a two inch overlay on 50th Avenue from the 20th to the highway will be left until the spring, along with a one inch overlay on the Industrial Road to Highway 22 and 80th

Street in front of Dome
Petroleum and Trans-alta Utilities. Also being left until the spring are some of the easles
at many intersections

that Olson says are too deep.

Olson told council that original plans called for to patch the lane behind
The Bay, but the cost of new pavement was about the same.

In his transportation

report to council Olson said two-hour parking on 30th Street and widening of the road in front of the road in front of the Royal Canadian Legion would also be dealt with in the '86 budget.

Ukrainian catering

Urkevich takes on big and small jobs

Lorne Urkevich caters to her customers. But that's not her job. Urkevich and her family are Ukrainian food catering, a business that's growing.

She says she will market any size of catering job and her reward comes if. At the bank, Mad dock High school reunion, they served more than 1,100 people. Urkevich's Ukrainian food catering business Urkevich has graduated, could not, and many companies can get a credit.

Every job is special and I do it with the greatest care, she explains.

But Urkevich does not alone, she has the help of her family.

Lorne Urkevich helps out at the Farmers Market.

Without my family and my husband Nick I could really not do it, she explains. I depend on my family to do the job.

Urkevich runs her operation in a family kitchen where everybody works.

But she is always busy to work when they take up a job like the high school reunion. Making the food and serving it to more than 1,100 people is no easy task. It took two days of preparation to make the 1,000 cabbage rolls needed. Urkevich's painted them 1,600 cabbage rolls in one afternoon and 1,100 the next afternoon.

The reunion, which she describes as her "biggest job," so far, took additional help. Urkevich hired four extra ladies to help serve.

Lorne Urkevich serves in one of the many people at the high school reunion.

It was, though, a quickly, she says, and everybody had lots to eat.

She also did the food. After reunion at Lorne's. Nick and is already booked for 11 wedding next summer. But Urkevich doesn't mind the work. She says she can double or even triple book one evening because her family knows their jobs so well that any of them can handle a job on their own.

Urkevich started catering about three years ago.

The Urkevich family. From left to right, Lorne, Shirley Westland, Lorne's daughter, Lorne's son, and Lorne's daughter. Missing from the photo are Lorne Westland, Lorne Westland, Lorne Urkevich, Lorne Urkevich, and Lorne Urkevich.

They served over 1,100 at the reunion.

and says her business has progressed well.

The Christmas season is a busy time for Urkevich as she caters several Christmas parties. She says they have bookings up to the 30th, so along with cooking at the Farmers Market every Wednesday, Urkevich admits she may have to expand her operation of the district's new.

We can handle it as it is now, but we will expand if we have to, she points out. Because it is a full time job, Urkevich says, it is hard to do things in advance. She says she has to do very much at the very last.

I cooked in a camp site, I was excited and I liked it then and I still love it.

Supplement farm income with home-based business

Enterprising farm women are seeking for profit.

This is their way to supplement farm income. A home-based business may be something you're interested in. Before you jump head first into business, consider your marketable skills. Does a special need for a product or service exist on nearby farms? If you can answer yes to this, you're on your way to supplementing your family's income. A home-based business may not be for everyone. Personal qualities necessary to run your own business are:

- 1. self-discipline
- 2. good business sense
- 3. ambition and initiative
- 4. a lot of physical energy
- 5. organizational skills
- 6. good public relations abilities
- 7. a resourceful nature.

Setting up a home-based business. Family support is vital for a home business. Children may be reluctant to do more around the house. There may be less time to spend with the family and special events may have to be postponed so you can meet a deadline. The entire family must want your business to succeed.

There are many hours available to be put to work through. How will you market your product? How will you keep records and organize business records? How will you manage your time to get everything done? What will you charge?

Take the time to research your business before beginning.

1. Check local regulations for licensing and zoning requirements.
2. Contact Alberta Tourism and Small Business for information and assistance on setting up a small business.

Health Unit releases new schedule

The Alberta West Central Health Unit has released their new clinic schedule.

The clinic is open every Wednesday in Drayton Valley from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 6 p.m.

1. Register your business with Central Health Unit.

1. Get insurance protection. It includes liability and business interruption insurance as well as crime coverage.
5. Select a lawyer and a health care consultant.

6. Know your tax rights and benefits.

Besides these, it's important to analyze your market potential demand for your product. Keep accurate records (financial and customer records) to manage your time efficiently. As well, explore a number of marketing strategies.

Putting your skills to work to set up a home-based business takes a lot of planning. It is a learning process. It can be fun, rewarding and profitable. Feel free to give me a call at 542-5368 if you would like more detailed information.

Women's Institute Christmas Fair is full

By Edith Debs

Bill and Mary Rack have moved from their home on 61st St. to 101st St. and 10th Ave. Bill is not in good health. I will be remembered for Bill and his brother Dick bought a house after they were discharged from the navy at the end of the war. Although on a new location the business is still known by their name.

Gary Hamilton, a long time resident of 101st St. and 10th Ave. is now in the extended care unit of the Red Head Hotel.

Paul Miller visited town last week. During the war, he ran the Red and White Store, which once stood at the junction of 31st Street and 30 Avenue. The store was destroyed in fire in recent years.

Elmer Bradley has returned from a visit with her son Bob in Denver, Colorado.

The R & W and Tom Club is to hold a two day show in Barreld Nov. 2 and 3.

The regular meeting of the Historical Society has been changed to Nov. 18 for next month only.

A full committee of the Drayton Valley branch of the Women's Institute held at Winger Hammerling's home Oct. 29 with a lengthy agenda.

Tables for the Christmas Fair are fully booked. The fair, sponsored by the R & W is to be held at the Frank Madsen High School Nov. 23. The doors will open at noon the cost is $5.00 a table and a table.

It was decided to hold afternoon meetings during the winter months. The November meeting will be at Agnes Regan's home on the 26th at 4:30 p.m.

It was agreed that the donations to Santa Anonymous and the office fund would be decided at the November meeting.

Flora Romanos gave a report on the luncheon detail tea held in Calhoun this year. Agnes Regan, Billie Regan, Rose Romanos and Barbara Goss were represented on the night.

Winger Hammerling gave an amusing account of her experiences in reports in Germany and Berlin on her way to the end of the war.

See you at the Christmas Fair.

What others are saying

Burning garbage is turning out to be a more expensive alternative to landfill than originally believed.

But despite the costs, the cheapest proposal pushes costs up $300,000, the Lacombe Regional Solid Waste Authority should keep working toward an incineration plant, unless that cost becomes totally unrealistic.

Right now the authority is waiting to see how a company's Wainwright proposal fared. The authority needs to know whether Votec's incineration plant will require scrubbers, which add more dollars to the project, to meet stringent Alberta Clean Air Act guidelines. And they need the assurance that Votec's recently reorganized company will remain in business.

Votec's proposals are with reasonable costs, the company's most extensive proposal on incineration plant with scrubbers and energy recovery units, is not too far out of line, in comparison to other bids. It increases total costs to just more than $3 million.

Compare that to the similar Thermal Reductions proposal, which calculates the total cost to $4.9 million, that's a whopping 60 per cent higher than original estimates, and the extent of possible incineration costs comes into focus.

The unfortunate aspect of the tendering results is that Thermal Reductions the company that wants the most money, is the only company with a proven record in the field of municipal incineration, which may be why it was so much money.

Votec, on the other hand, is an unknown until data at Wainwright is put before the authority. The authority is acting wisely by not jumping at one of Votec's bids on the four different incineration proposals it offers. But that doesn't mean incineration will be abandoned.

The numbers are enough to make any governing body more than a little nervous. Higher costs could easily translate into higher taxes. And higher taxes are politically unworkable.

But some of the important advantages of incineration should not be forgotten, which the figures, rather through authority, make more obvious.

Water and air are important to human survival. If the air human can't see, which is the case in Landfills, the air is polluted with water and waste land. Garbage next door to a landfill, stored and the waste problem is not a nagging worry.

Alberta Clean Air Act regulations more than adequately govern the emissions of an incinerator. Air pollution from burning household garbage at extremely high temperatures is not a nagging worry.

All possible ventures in constructing a regional incineration operation, perhaps even one covering a larger area, is one with some other arrangement to reduce costs, must be explored.

The authority should not return to the landfill idea.

Clark defends Conservative record at riding meeting

STONY PLAIN — The Progressive Conservative party can be proud of the changes made by the Conservative government since they came to power last year, Yellowhead MP Joe Clark said in a speech last weekend.

Attacks directed at former Liberal governments and at the Canadian media as well as unflattering praise for the Conservative party, were major ingredients in the speech given before about 150 party members assembled for the annual general meeting of the Yellowhead Federal Progressive Conservative Association.

Covering a list of topics ranging from the racial riots scandal and the collapse of two Canadian banks to Access to Information legislation, Clark continually pressed the principles of and the changes being made by the Conservative government.

Speaking on two areas, it poses that have troubled the Conservative government in recent weeks, the resignation from cabinet of John Francis over the sale of royal oil and an RCMP investigation, Clark is being conducted into the election spending of former cabinet minister Marc Masse. Clark said he is sure the law former ministers in cabinet.

Very much more the absence in cabinet of both of these men, he said, "but I also very much respect the standards that required them to leave."

The Liberal Party's standard he continued would have been to keep their ministers clinging to office. We however, respected the rules.

On the liquidation of the two chartered banks Clark cautioned his listeners not to equate the collapse of two banks with a shaky banking system.

One reason this is such a great country is that we have a strong banking system. That is not in question. The banks' collapse is being investigated fairly and fully and the results will be made public.

That statement then lead into another shot at the Liberal party which, Clark said, has not been going parliament the right to review the actions of cabinet chairman and deputy ministers.

That is changing, he said. "There has been too much secrecy, too little openness of the facts about political life."

The public has a right to know the bad news as well as the good news.

He added that the Access to Information legislation brought in by the Liberals is not as good as the Freedom of Information Act he tried to pass in 1979.

Program subject to change without notice

Yellowhead MP Joe Clark poses with a group of PC party members from Drayton Valley at the party's annual general meeting of the Yellowhead Federal PC Association.

and that he is having a complete review of the whole system" done.

Summing up the first part of his speech, Clark said the Conservative government has done very well in its first 14 months in power.

Instead of being thrown out of course, the government has stayed very much on course, he said. "All of us have real need there is a cause for pride in the accomplishments and changes made in the first year."

Perfection has not been achieved, yet, though it will take a couple more years, maybe a couple more mandates before we are able to solve every problem in the world.

The MP next got down to specifics, talking about the government's accomplishments in the economy, energy and agricultural fields.

Mortgage rates are down, bank rates are down, there are 300,000 new jobs, the Gross National Product is up and a building steady and inflation is stable, he said.

Most important, though, is that Canadian Business investment animations are up 12 per cent over last year.

Clark attributed most of the government's economical success to the dynamism of the Foreign Investment Review Agency (FIRA) and the National Energy Program (NEP).

Of FIRA, Clark said the aspect of the program that struck him the most was the sound of the first part of the name: free.

Clark also said that NEP devastated this part of Western Canada.

"We are going to prove that western Canada is an equal partner in this confederation and is not to be subjected to random attacks such as NEP."

The protectionist policies of the United States and Europe have contributed to the damage of the Canadian agricultural industry, he continued.

Go south of the 49th parallel into a country that reported to have 11¢ to do with protectionism and look at the extent of subsidy in the agriculture sector.

He said the government's review of the Farm Croft Corporation and its Red Meat Stabilization program will help get the farming industry back on its feet.

"There is a lot to change in Canada," he concluded. "Particularly since this is the first majority government of another party since Diefenbaker's time. But we're talking on these problems."

In the face of some very major surprises, I would like to suggest that the PC party can take some pride in the changes that have been made.

It is time to begin to tackle some of the myths and practices that have held this country back.

Special preparation needed for a second marriage

By Patricia Malt

Nobody said it would be easy facing a second marriage with children or marrying first time into a ready-made family. Can take some special preparation. Step-families are ahead when they realize that they function normally differently from others. A special situation takes a special approach.

Often a step-mother or step-father will express to the children that they love their mother or father. They want to be one big happy family (the new, improved model). That can be a mistake. Children are still devoted to their own parents and will often make it clear they don't need or want a replacement. Step-parents have a different role in their lives.

The incoming adult has to establish what is expected of them. Where do they fit in? Can promises be seen never ending? Even from a broken home, there may be an established philosophy of raising children that may not match yours. It is essential for the parents to communicate constantly to make the adjustment just as easy as possible.

Studies have shown that the step-mother's role is the hardest. The female in today's society is seen as a nurturer. If the mother fails to establish instant loving relationships with step children, she is faced with a lot of stress, anxiety, self-doubt and anger.

It doesn't have to be that way. Many blended families have succeeded and their experiences can help other step-parents weather the storm. Here are a few guidelines that may help in that transition.

1. Expectations - It takes three to five years for step-parents and children to "grip" feelings. It will come, in work out the challenges of the new household and begin to accept one another. Don't set yourself up for a disappointment. Don't expect things to develop overnight. Instead, relax and give yourselves the necessary time to settle in. You not only have this new immediate family to care for and get to know, but you may have new in-laws, new relatives, a whole new world open to you. Give it the time it needs to grow and take a breath. Don't rush in decisions you feel you are not prepared for. Be honest but caring.

2. Privacy - In the blended family you are not allowed a "get to know you period" without children as you do in a first marriage. You may find yourself feeling you have to fight for privacy alone in your new marriage. You still have a need for solitude in this new relationship. It's important for husband and wife to arrange time alone together. You need the strength of this commitment. You have to distinguish a period for "me" time, "our time" and "family time." Don't be afraid to assert your needs and tell spouse and children it is part of looking after each other.

The poor new step-mother may feel it is a priority to give their time to the needs of the children. They often feel guilty about the adjustment they are asking the kids to make. They divert most of their attention to the children and present it as a normal course of events. That could backfire.

You have to establish yourself in a family. Do not set yourself up as you like to preserve later. It may not come. So ask for the privacy from the beginning and be willing to make some compromise if it isn't totally understood at first. It will be a give and take.

3. Discipline - This is a buggy. A step-parent will often feel they have no right to lay down the law or impose punishment. It's a thorny issue. If each parent brings children in the family the subject can be very sensitive. All of a sudden my kids and your kids need to be distinguished and you hear "Weren't you a little hard on my kid?"

Both adults must reach an understanding IN PRIVATE. They have to outline their expectations and rules that fit the children - everybody's children.

4. Facing the holidays - Special occasions can be rocky for a blended family. It can involve former spouses visiting children not living with you and relating to two worlds at once. It is also a time when kids and spouses might reminisce and the new step-parent may feel left out and hurt.

Memories aren't made instantly and you have to realize that. Pretty soon you will be remembering about your own together and you can't afford to be sensitive about things that can't be changed. Concentrate on the now - share some of your past, and don't be overly sensitive about a past that did not include you. Don't avoid it or change the subject. It is only made up of the same stuff as 5. Visiting step-children - The most difficult position for a step-parent, Children visits interrupt the routine of the home. You have to give them time to become a normal part of the family's routine and a participating member of the group.

Little Sarah for instance did no chores when she stayed with Pam and Pete. Pam would leave her teaching job to his groceries, to go home to prepare dinner and set the table while Sarah watched television.

Finally Pam simply picked up the telephone and called Sarah's mother. "This is Pete's wife who announced to the startled woman. Would you please tell me what your daughter is responsible for when she is with you?"

She sets and clears the table and washes the dishes. She is responsible for keeping her own room neat," the mother replied.

STEPS PART 2

That's fine," said Pam. "Sarah will handle these chores at our place too and I appreciate our being able to get together on this." Kids who visit often have no friends in the neighborhood or other activities to occupy them. They need to be entertained. Can be stressful for natural and step-parents alike. One solution is offering to bring a friend with them to visit. The presence of the friend can also take some pressure off the visit and enable the whole family to relax and be at ease with one another.

Have faith - It can work. I have a step father I wouldn't trade for a million bucks (a million and one, maybe). You are going to learn from your mistakes and be rewarded for your successes. That pays the same good luck.

 Preschool story hour begins alternate Saturdays. Your library will have a free preschool story hour beginning Saturdays Nov. 9 from 11:11 to 12:11 at the library.

This program will be held every other Saturday morning with volunteer coordinator Sharon Burkhart. Stories will include story reading, activities and crafts, songs especially for children ages three to five years.

Enrollment is limited to 12 children. Each child must be pre-registered to attend. A registration sheet is available at the library desk during regular hours open. No telephone registrations will be accepted.

Registration is for four story hours, Nov. 9 and 23, Dec. 7 and 21. If your child can attend all sessions, please register now! Further sessions will be planned to continue in 1986, if there is sufficient response.

Playpen for babies
 Parents of babies will be happy to know the library now has a playpen for the children's area. It's that good news! No more having to juggle a young infant while trying to "browse for books." We suggest that parents bring a small toy or two from home to keep baby amused. It is more desirable to have baby chewing on its own toy rather than the communal toys in the library.

Library patrons send get well wishes
 Have you signed the large get well card for Adele Duckett? For many years Duckett was a member of the library staff and currently serves as an Outreach volunteer, delivering books to the shut-ins at Shagan's Lodge and Wishong Well apartments. She has been hospitalized for several weeks. Join us in sending get well wishes to her through the library and sign your name on the card!

Nov. 6-9 Four-day seminar

The Drayton Valley Pentecostal Assembly is sponsoring a four-day counselling seminar Nov. 6-9.

The Nov. 6-9 counselling seminar will feature Terry Peterman, whose work deals with many of the causes of emotional turmoil in our society. The seminar will be held at the evening of 7:30 p.m. at the Pentecostal Assembly.

Peterman is expected to address such topics as how we can live up to our potential, how to overcome a negative self-image, how to handle progress and self's ambition, how to change negative behaviour, how to deal with stress, the pattern and the reason for problems. The seminar is built upon a personal teaching from the scriptures.

Terry Peterman grew up in the streets of Vancouver. He had a rough time of it, often in the death of his father, then was a few miles from home, and he came to find peace with God, Jesus, with himself and a new purpose and time in his life.

Growing Together!

COUNTY OF PARKLAND NO. 31

In 1954, when the Town of Drayton Valley had a population of 75 people, Amoco Canada completed its first well in the Pembina field.

Since then, together, we've built houses and roads, schools and businesses; churches and recreational facilities.

Amoco Canada is proud of the role our employees have played in helping to develop Drayton Valley into one of Alberta's finest communities, and we're proud of the role the people of Drayton Valley have played in helping our company become one of Canada's major producers of crude oil and natural gas.

Jobs from drilling to production

No "secret" to the well servicing industry

They are a vital part of the oil industry.

Their job can begin after the drilling is complete or even after the well has been in production for several years.

They are the well servicing units.

Brandette Well Servicing is one of the well servicing companies in Drayton Valley.

Formed in May of 1980 by Brian Winder, the company grew from one rig to five just four months after he started. Since then Winder's company has grown to eight service rigs and employs 50 men full time.

It is kept busy, Winder explains.

In the Drayton Valley area the majority of our work is routine, oil well repairs and cleanups, he adds.

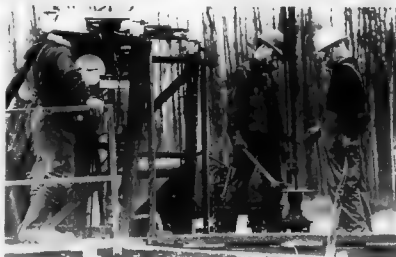

This can be anything from pump changes to repairing valves in the production flow lines.

The average job can last from eight hours to 25 days, Winder says.

There is never a dull moment, Winder says, in the field in the well.

For Brandette, most of their work is done within a 50 km radius of Drayton Valley. The six-day a week operation is a slow steady drag road run in the region.

Well weather also slows down the operations, Winder explains.

The crew from Brandette's Rig No. 1 work on a well.

Every year since he started his company, Winder has added a service rig to the fleet and this year he has plans to upgrade existing equipment.

Winder explains the company's job quite simply.

An oil company contracts us and says they have a problem with a well and we provide the equipment and people to perform the servicing part of the work.

Winder adds that well servicing depends more on the cost saving production rather than the exploration end of the industry.

Only about 20 percent of their work is done on completing newly drilled wells or "exploration" work. The industry bringing a well into production after the drilling rig has left.

But no matter which part of the job they do, problems can occur.

A sign on one of the eight rigs.

Sometimes we find other problems with a well that drag a job out.

"A quick pump change is usually a seven to eight hour job, but they seem to be the ones that usually drag out to be a fairly extensive job," Winder added.

More work at the pump.

ERCB

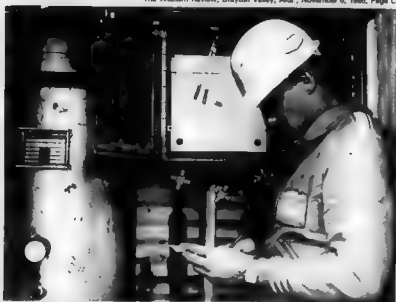

Oil patch Police

They are the "police" of the infield. That's how Brent Harrison describes his job with the Energy Resources Conservation Board (ERCB) in Drayton Valley. They are the watchdogs of the industry.

But there is no such thing as a typical day at the ERCB. According to Harrison, "every day is a special in the Drayton Valley branch."

Harrison explains that he plans his days each

Photos and story by Lorne Christensen

Brent Harrison inspects a wellhead.

Harrison's day can range from inspecting wells to oil spills (inset photo).

morning but at any time a call could come summoning him to a problem in the industry.

Locally, the ERCB handles five major coverage areas: drilling and servicing of production, gas production, pipeline construction and environmental concerns.

As one of the three local area inspectors, Harrison is responsible for a certain area. His territory stretches from north of Hays to 16 to south of Alder Falls and from Page to Lake near Drayton Valley. Harrison travels the roads and trails of this area often checking up about 80,000 kilometres a year.

His day can range from a simple facility check at a lease site to inspecting an oil spill if a detailed inspection of a lease is required.

Harrison explained a well gets checked at least once every three weeks.

The local ERCB office is responsible for almost 8,000 oil and gas wells. Harrison says the area inspectors spend about 90 per cent of the time in the field and only 10 per cent in the office. Although they only work five days a week, it takes one member of the staff to run all of the lines to handle emergencies.

A lot of their time is spent dealing with landowner complaints, Harrison adds, but he says people's concerns to the oil companies.

But dealing with the companies is something that takes experience.

It involves experience, gaining them as they are not sure how, Harrison says, but about how they deal with problems like oil spills.

"Oil companies are being co-operative"

He adds that being "co-operative" is the company's way of saying, "get the things done or else." The oil companies are very co-operative, Harrison says.

If there is a problem or there is a legitimate complaint from a landowner, Harrison will notify the company usually with a letter asking them to rectify the situation.

It says sending them a letter asking them to rectify what you want them to do and the time period works well. But if there is a situation like an oil spill, that requires immediate action, Harrison says his first priority is to stop it, it won't get worse.

One such situation arose recently when a farmer reported gas bubbling from the ground west of Drayton Valley. Harrison, along with another ERCB staff member, rode in a remote site on an all-terrain vehicle to check it out.

Harrison said they didn't know what to expect.

They found an abandoned well that had begun to leak and then notified the company responsible. Problems like this are all in a day's work for the ERCB.

We respond to any complaints that may have something to do with the industry, Harrison adds.

Extra precautions

Safety

Could there be a Lodgepole blowout number three?

Not if Amoco can help it. Since the previous two Lodgepole area blowouts, Amoco has been playing it safe with their drilling in the area.

Added safety precautions in several areas of the rig are making the possibility of a blowout almost impossible.

It's not impossible, but it's the next thing to it," says Hollis Zarro, an Amoco public affairs officer.

Amoco has drilled one snafu gas well successfully and is working on number two in the same area as the Lodgepole blowouts.

Both wells drilled by Regent Inc. 15 are being monitored closely.

We're taking all the precautions we can to cut down on the probability," says Jim Marshall, Amoco's drilling engineer, supervising for the Drayton Valley office.

The extra precautions Marshall was referring to include an exact head count of personnel on site. Other features include snafu gas detectors on the drilling site. Six positioned on the rig and the other two on the site's perimeter.

Along with the added snafu gas sensing devices include "more than enough" air pumps for the people on site. A senior safety advisor with

One of the air masks stands ready in case the rig

is first

Amos Bruce Gourlay said the air parks are located at several areas around the site to provide easy access for the rig workers.

Other safety measures include having all the vehicles on site facing out with the axles in the direction. This is to provide a quick exit if personnel have to flee the area quickly.

Included with the safety requirements is a rule no one on site can have a beard. It would prevent a proper seal on their air masks, Gourlay said.

In addition, the rig has been beefed up with extra equipment to reduce the chance of a blowout. At the well head a device used on oil shore rigs will shut the drilling pipe if necessary. They have added additional mud valves and more ways of adding mud. As for the gas, they have been installed, one is for back up.

"added redundancy to the rig"

"We've added redundancy to the rig," Mar Donald pointed out.

But if all the precautions fail and a blowout does occur, they are ready.

An emergency response plan has been drawn up and it includes everything from who to notify to monitoring the sour gas vapors. The plan also has specifics on where to set up roadblocks to keep people away and when to call in the fire service.

But Amos is confident the well will be safe. He said the emergency response plan.

Fire safety course

Battling the blaze is part of the job

Mobil Oil is a hot place to work. Just ask about 80 Mobil employees, who recently took the company's fire safety course.

The employees were given about two hours of classroom instruction before being sent out to tackle real fires in a controlled area.

According to George Thiel, from Mobil, every year they conduct a fire safety course for their employees. The course is usually split into two days with about 15 to 20 people in each group. Mobil has built an elaborate series of props that simulate almost every type of fire that employees could encounter in the field.

The people taking the course are faced with everything from trench fires to tank fires to pipe fires. After being given instruction on how to combat fires varying in size with the hand held fire extinguisher, they are given their practical test.

About 80 employees took part in killing fires.

The flames won over on some occasions.

Putting out a fire inside a barrel wasn't easy.

All aspects of industry

Oilfield needs met

Every day the oil industry needs equipment and parts.

Every day companies like Mid-Continent Supply meet the needs of the industry.

Mid-Continent Supply, like other supply companies in Drayton Valley, keep the industry going by supplying parts for everything from rigs to oil pumps.

We have basic oilfield supply for all aspects of the oil industry, from drilling to the completion phase to production," says Jim Herbert, manager of Mid-Continent.

Herbert says they can supply everything from pipe valves to fittings to pumpjacks and engines. The store is usually the busiest from 7 in about 8 a.m. and then again from 4 to 5 p.m. when all the companies are "lining up for tomorrow," Herbert explained.

Although supply companies can't supply everything the industry might need, they can give advice to have just about anything in Drayton Valley in 24 hours.

Hopefully, we try to be a one-stop operation, Herbert adds.

The supply industry in Drayton Valley has grown considerably with the oil patch as Herbert points out. The various supply companies in town each have an area they specialize in. For Mid-Continent it's the production side.

The bulk of what sales are in production companies, we're product oriented.

While Mid-Continent goes mainly into the production and other various companies are better in supplying drilling rigs or service rigs.

With more than $500,000 in inventory, Mid-Continent tries to meet the needs of the companies. They have been in Drayton Valley since 1955, Herbert says and have been supplying the industry since it first opened up.

Herbert explained a lot of the staff's time is spent ordering parts and equipment and having it delivered "overnight" from their Calgary office.

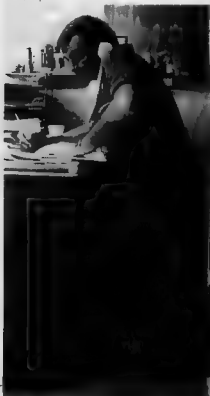

The supply companies in Drayton Valley cover a large range of territory. It's the Edson and Hinton area as far south as Rocky Mountain House and into the Devon area.

The supply stores promise to be in Drayton Valley a long time, according to Herbert.

It depends on the area but most of the major ones have stayed here since the field opened up, he explained.

Lobstick

Gas plant served by 24 wells

From the outside it looks like a maze.

A series of pipes wind around the site, pipelines surface from the ground and gauges sprout from the various pipes.

It's a gas plant and after putting aside the complicated and intricate design the plant serves a simple purpose. It serves to collect the gas from several wells and ship it to a gas purchaser, like Nova.

David Abday, a senior petroleum engineer supervisor with Amoco, said their Lobstick gas plant takes gas from about 12 wells.

"Like putting air in your tires"

"It's a low-pressure gas gathering system," he pointed out.

The plant, about 15 kilometres north of Drayton Valley, is served by wells up to 11 kilometres away. In total, 24 wells are connected to the plant, according to Abday.

We bring gas in and ship the liquids out at the plant and then the gas is compressed.

Abday explained once they compress the gas with the five large compressors, they take out all the natural gas liquids (NGL) out of the high pressure gas stream.

We refrigerate the stream and bring the temperature down, that knocks out the NGL," he added.

Abday explained they have to make sure no liquids are in the gas once it is compressed and ready to be sent down the pipeline.

"We're pushing the gas into a smaller space, just like putting air in your tires," he said, adding it would cause problems if you put water into your tires.

To compress the gas they use the five compressors with a total of 4,200 horse power between them — the largest has 1,600 horse power.

After the initial compression the gas is cooled down, because as Abday pointed out, it "heats up after working on it." The gas is cooled by large fans before going to the next stage of compression when the gas reaches the "production pressure" needed to send it on the pipeline. More liquids are removed from the gas again and it is compressed a third time and sent to the gas purchaser, Abday explained.

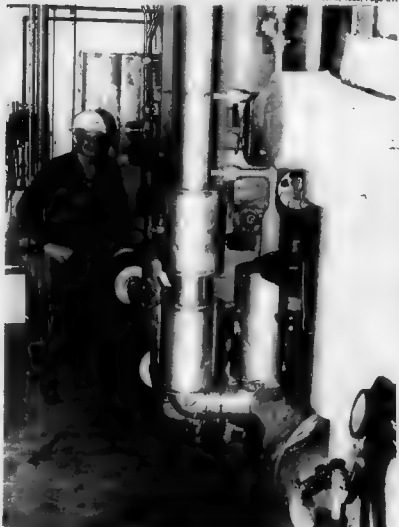

Abday pointed out that the Lobstick plant has "very rich gas with a lot of propane and butanes." The gas going into the Lobstick plant comes from the Glauconite formation Abday added and the gas discovered here is very rich in natural liquids.

The Lobstick plant has a capacity of 600,000 cubic metres of gas daily, but Abday pointed out they are looking at ways to "extend the life of the reservoir" by adding more compressors. Other ways of extending the field's life include adding other wells to the line and working over the existing wells.

Currently the plant is run by a "day shift," Abday explained when the plant is up and running you only need someone to do maintenance. The operator's job is to "monitor" the gas going in and correct any problem.

But — Abday points out the plant should work well.

With good engineering ideas and ideas from the field people and good operational practices it works," he added.

David Abday stands inside one of the sheds at the Lobstick Gas Plant north of Drayton Valley.

The flare behind the Lobstick sign burns off the waste from the plant.

PAPCCO

Local oil companies joining forces in pollution co-op

It's a coop in the true sense of the word.

The Pembina Area Pollution Control Co-operative or PAPCCO is made up of about 60 oil companies, all with wells in this area.

Chairman of the coop Bill Boos, of Texaco, says the coop was formed so individual companies wouldn't have to buy their own oil spill recovery equipment.

The ERCS requires us to have a certain amount of equipment," Boos explained. For the smaller companies putting out the money to buy the equipment and maintain it would be too much. The coop idea means all the companies share the equipment and have access to it.

The coop, which has about $50,000 worth of equipment, covers the area from Stony Plain to Edmonton and down to Black Lake and part of the Brazeau area. Alberta has 20 other co-ops with the local one having one of the highest well counts of all, according to Boos.

Each year members of PAPCCO hold an oil spill exercise to keep members up to date with procedures. This year's exercise was on the Pembina River at one of the many control points the coop has designated. Boos explained they have a manual which outlines the procedures and also gives detailed descriptions of the various control points. If a spill occurred they would refer to the manual and be able to determine which control point would be the best.

Probably next year we'll have a consultant in park out many control points," Boos explained.

He added next year they would like to do a lake spill exercise for "something slightly different."

A lake exercise is a lot of work but it's definitely something to be looking at.

The coop will also be looking at updating their manual in terms of contacts for companies and more maps as well.

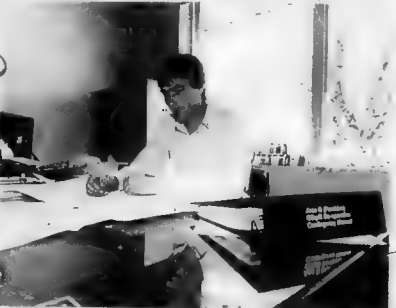

The funds for PAPCCO come from the various companies involved. Each company is billed according to the number of wells they have in the coop's area. Boos said there is a minimum fee of $100 for the companies. He added that "quite a few new wells" are being drilled in the area and any new companies are "required to join the coop" or prove to the ERCS they could handle a spill.

PAPCCO is mainly involved with water spills of "some sort or another" Boos explained. He said most of the land spills can be cleaned up by a backhoe and don't need the equipment in the PAPCCO trailers.

Boos added that this area was "one of the first areas to get involved in a coop."

Bill Boos, chairman of PAPCCO, examines the area maps at his desk.

International honor

Ross awarded life pin for work in Oil Wives

Lil Ross was awarded a life membership pin to the Association of Oil Wives, an international organization.

The 26 year resident of Drayton Valley received the honor at the recent Oil Wives convention in Edmonton. She is one of a group of 18 that have been awarded the pin since 1951 when the association was formed.

I feel quite honored, Ross said.

"I was embarrassed being nominated"

"Usually they award it to people who have given outstanding service," she explained, adding that most of the past recipients have been past presidents of the organization. Ross, who has been on the Oil Wives board for two years, says she was surprised she got the honor.

I told them (the local club) before I left I was embarrassed being nominated. But at the convention she was called on stage by the president of the Oil Wives and asked to sit at the singing, something she has done at many past conventions.

When she finished with the president came up and announced I was awarded a life membership, Ross explained.

The honor means she will not have to pay membership dues to the association and will be serving on its executive committee.

Ross was nominated for the award along with 11 other women from the various clubs around the world. Locally, she serves as the program chairman of the organization.

We are not going in for every meeting, she said, the strength is the local point of the meeting.

Ross is a music teacher at Fairbairn school, has two sons but is not in the oil industry. Lynn works for D.D. Meter while Aaron works on service rigs near Red Deer. Her husband, Reg, works for Ceda Chemicals in Drayton Valley.

Ross said she really felt good after receiving the pin which is the highest honor in the Oil Wives.

I was going to withdraw my nomination because I didn't think I had a chance of winning. I didn't feel I had enough qualifications.

She said the award was even more special because she didn't expect it.

The criteria for the award is based on lifelong friendship and service with the association. Locally she has served as president and has 11 years of perfect attendance at meetings. But Ross thinks the award was given to her because of her work at the conventions leading the singing.

Only one pin is awarded yearly and the association can decide not to award a pin if they feel no one is qualified.

Lil Ross relaxes in her Drayton Valley home.

Oil Wives

Making new friends is goal

They are the women behind the oil men. The Oil Wives is an international organization of more than 30 Oil Wives clubs that offers women a "social club."

The Drayton Valley Oil Wives were formed in 1956 and have three remaining charter members: Val Rostema, Ross, Helen and Mary Johnson. According to Kathy Silverson, publicity chairman for the local club, Drayton Valley has 75 members today.

"It's strictly a ladies' club, not a service club," Silverson explained.

They meet once a month to "make new friends and have a good time," Silverson added.

Silverson pointed out the motto is "fostering friendship" and any lady can join as long as 50 per cent of her husband's income is from the oil patch.

The idea of forming an Oil Wives club originated in 1951 in Red Deer. A wife decided to form the club as a social outlet for the wives of oil men that always seemed to be working.

According to a history book on the Oil Wives, the Drayton Valley club held its first meeting on March 20, 1956 when 101 ladies joined as charter members.

The international club holds a convention once a year with a different club acting as host. Drayton Valley hosted the 1984 convention in Edmonton. The Drayton Valley club was awarded the effigy award at the 1980 convention in Edmonton.

According to Silverson, new members are welcome.

Silverson says they do "different things" at their meetings including listening to guest speakers but it's "mostly friendship."

It's a night for the women to get out and make new friends, Silverson said.

Pipeline expansion project

Since Pembina Resources Ltd. first opened its pipelines in 1934 more than 133 billion barrels of oil has travelled down the pipeline.

According to pipeline manager Al Horn, they shipped an average of 171,000 barrels a day in the tober.

They take crude oil from Rocky Mountain House north to Chip Lake and from Pigeon Lake west to the Brazeau field. Horn says the company has about 1,100 miles of line in the area, including the gathering lines and the main line into Edmonton.

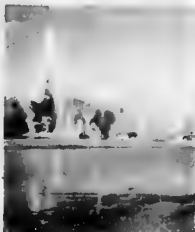

Pembina Resources is continuing to expand their pipeline network and up-date existing lines. In early October they had a series of explosions at a pipeline crossing on the North Saskatchewan upstream from Drayton Valley. The explosions blasted out 485 metres of riverbed to put in three new lines. The new lines replaced existing ones that had been exposed by the water, according to Pembina's construction superintendent Dan Greger.

Greger pointed out they held a series of three separate explosions to minimize the impact on the environment.

"We installed two 12 inch and one six inch line," Greger explained.

The new lines have a "three metre cover below the lowest point of the main river channel" according to Greger.

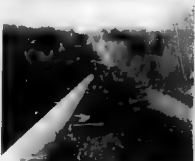

The project was part of the company's efforts to up-date their lines which carry oil from 500 hat series in the Pembina field and other smaller fields.

The explosions took place over three days.

Oil very important to town

June 13 1963 is the most important day in the history of Drayton Valley

On that day employees of Sonogy Vacuum discovered oil flowing from their exploration well.

Although the well seemed small at the time, producing about five and a half barrels an hour it was to be a very important discovery for the hamlet of Drayton Valky to the north and east.

The years that follow ed the initial Pembina field discovery transformed Drayton Valley into a booming town. By 1955 the population had mushroomed from 75 to 2,000 and continued to grow.

According to Statistics Canada almost 85 per cent of the labor force in Drayton Valley has jobs directly related to the industry. These include jobs from drilling to servicing to production.

"If it wasn't for the oil industry 90 per cent of us wouldn't be here" according to Mayor Bob Mayhew.

Matthew added the town would probably be a "hamlet" if oil hadn't

Chamber of Commerce President Martin Prentice echoed similar statements.

Obviously the oil industry is the basis for the majority of the industry and services," Prentice said.

Our economy flows in ebbs with the general economy of the oil industry. Prentice added.

Kevin Baumann stands at the disposal well.

Disposal plant serving small guys

Kevin Baumann - looking for waste water. Baumann owns Baumann Resources Disposal Company Limited and specializes in disposal of waste water.

He opened the disposal plant last spring near Pigeon Lake to serve the Drayton Valley area, but more specifically, the smaller oil companies.

Most of the bigger oil companies have their own disposal plants. The main reason for this one is to cater to the small guys who don't have one," Baumann explained.

The plant has a capacity to pump 1,000 barrels of waste water daily into the ground. The water is injected into a non-producing field.

The plant was a long process in coming as it took seven months to get E.R.R. approval and another four months to have the plant from the S.A. Oil and Gas.

Because many of the smaller companies don't have their own disposal system Baumann is hoping to "corner" the market on waste water disposal.

FAME

SAWDY! — Before there was Jacqueline Bismuth or Rosemary Rogers or Jackie Collins, there was Kathleen Windsor, whose "Forever Amber" was a major best-seller back in 1944 and ran into a certain amount of trouble from the censors of the day.

Raguel Welch

It was the tale of Amber St. Clare — a scrawny wench if there ever was one. When the book begins, Amber is a simple country maid. Shortly before the book ends, Amber is the favorite mistress of Charles II. Linda Darnell starred in the 1947 movie version, and now Raguel Welch is producing and planning to star in a six-hour dramatization of the novel for ABC. She'll play Amber, of course. "Forever Amber" is rather short on plot. Amber seemed to spend the bulk of her time seducing men, being seduced, getting, altogether, coming down with the bubonic plague, and pining after the one man she truly loved (who unfortunately doesn't seem to care much for her). But if it's good booty for that ABC is after there's plenty of material to draw on. And these days, network television could probably treat the — oh — romantic scenes in a much more graphic manner than Forever Amber was able to treat them in her book.

TELEVISIONS — Television has long been vilified for its neglect of popular music. Still, many outstanding tunes have been produced specifically for weekly series. Twelve Toome has collected 55 favorites from the '50s and '60s in one two-record set. The album, entitled "Television's Greatest Hits," contains personal favorites such as "Batman," "Mission: Impossible" and "Star Trek" and features such unheralded classics as the Beatles from "Perry Mason" and "Burt Reynolds."

Also included: tunes by today's favored movie composers and record producers, including hits by Jerry Goldsmith ("The Man from U.N.C.L.E."), John Williams ("Lost in Space") and Quincy Jones ("Tomb Raider") — and catch those horrors!

The album is a treasure for TV lovers and music lovers alike. Don Ferlie is the announcer.

WAY BACK — Barry Manilow's association with CBS, the network broadcasting his upcoming TV movie "Cocacola" on Dec. 3, goes way back. At age 16, while he was attending the New York College of Music and Juillard, Manilow worked in the CBS mailroom to pay his expenses, and he claims he still has a great deal of affection for the giant network. "I've always felt the CBS was where I belonged," he says. "It's where I started on."
